HOW CHORES HELP CHILDREN DEVELOP

Doing chores help children in many ways:

- They learn to contribute to their current families' welfare. This in turn helps them to be responsible parents to their own families.
- They learn to develop the character qualities/life skills of self-discipline; hard work; delayed gratification etc.
- They can learn wisdom for life. For example, they learn that life will not hand them privileges for free on a silver platter. However, they can learn that life will present them with opportunities to earn an income and to better themselves.
Proverbs 13:4
"No matter how much a lazy person may want something, he will never get it. A hard worker will get everything he wants."
- They can learn that privileges bring with it responsibilities so that wherever they may find themselves, they will be contributors and not simply consumers.
- They can take pride in work well done. This raises their self-esteem.
- Working together as a family also brings about unity.
- Finally, the saying that, "The devil finds work for idle hands" is true.
- Children left unsupervised with too much free time are more tempted to get up to mischief. On the other hand, when they have responsibilities to attend to, they are less likely to be tempted to go astray.
